Culture club

Wanchai Livelihood Place is an organisation started by locals to preserve the area's culture and identity. The main gallery, the Blue House, is located in a tenement block built in the 1920s. It runs quirky exhibitions on subjects such as Hong Kong wedding rituals, the role of television in Hong Kong people's lives, and local street markets. The latest exhibition is a display of record players. The museum also conducts heritage walks in the area.

Lights out

Dialogue in the Dark is an exhibition with a difference. Visually impaired guides lead participants into a pitch-black environment where they experience five different Hong Kong scenarios – a ferry, market, park, movie theatre and café. The skilled guides show the sighted how to appreciate their environment without light.
